Wonderful, witty, eclectic and just fun to read and gaze at these places and people! If you are into, what I call, perfectionist interior design (all rooms look like the belong in a hotel) then I would say this book is not for you. If you have a spirit of adventure and an eye to making your place exactly as you please, then this is a book for you!0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Disappointing book...By Sunshine FrostI found this book to be very disappointing. After following all the work heposts on his website I thought it would be different. The pictures onhis website are so vibrant and interesting and the one's chosen for this bookwere so bland and boring. I understand that they can't put everythingin the book, but at least choose more interesting people. I think Selby madethe book too hipster and as a result it took away from the artistic element.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. and it

I prefer overall views of homes, and it focuses on the little details more than I find useful. I think it's better to see how the rug itself ties the room together, rather than a close up of the rug with feet on it.

The Selby Is in Your Place was conceived when fashion and interiors photographer Todd Selby began taking portraits of dynamic and creative people—authors, musicians, artists, and designers—in their home environments and posting them on his web site. Nosy by nature, he wanted to see how personal style was reflected in private spaces. Lucky for us, he found his answer in the color-rich and eclectic quarters of a diverse group of subjects, including Simon Doonan and Jonathan Adler, Faris Rotter, Andre Walker, and Olivier Zahm, in New York, Los Angeles, Paris, Tokyo, Sydney, and London. Each profile is accompanied by Selby's watercolor portraits of the subjects and objects from their homes, and illustrated questionnaires, which Selby asks each sitter to fill out. This book consists of over thirty profiles, many of which have never-before-seen, selected exclusively for the book. The result is a collection of unique spaces bursting with energy and personality that together create a colorful hodgepodge of inspirational interiors.
